Mr. Editor: Finding out that there are really such things done as that of "advertising for a husband," I have taken the liberty of advertising for one through the columns of your paper. According to custom, I will describe myself: I am five feet high, fair complected, black eyes, and dark brown curling hair. I am also worth forty thousand dollars; but of course that would make no difference to a gentleman. I am eighteen years of age, and some of our Southern editors say that I am "talented." Be that as it may. I enjoy some literary celibrity. THEY OUGHT TO BE HAPPY.

of pleasure around its favored possessor. man has a standard of his own, he has but to come up to that standard in order to secure his own complete happiness. Some men, who seem to be surrounded by every element of pleasure, are really miserable and full of discontent; while others, who are blessed with few advantages, wear smiling faces and happy hearts. So that happiness and misery are, after all, to a great extent mere creations of the mind, regulated according to the standard of each particular man. We have sometimes seen men possessed of wealth, influence and position, who were not a whit happier than their neighbors who had none of these advantages, and who were dependent upon their daily labor for their daily bread .-Here was the difference-one existing in mental contemplation only, viz: the one class considered themselves unhappy, and they were unhappy; while the other class regarded themselves as happy, and they Messrs. Albertson and Pool, candidates were happy. To be sure, there is another for the Senate in this District, and Messrs. class-a middle class between the twowho do the best they can under all the circumstances-do their duty faithfully, following places and times; and the Sena- and, if adversity overtakes them, bear up with all the philosophy at their command, while if prosperity smiles upon them, they wear their honors with becoming gratitude

But the first class named are the most remarkable, and ought to be the most hap py, if any reliance is to be placed in appearances. For, whether successful or defeated, they always have such an abundance of salvos at hand that they still hold the vantage ground by long olds over all others. Hence, vanity may be counted great virtue with them, since it serves to make them exceedingly well satisfied with Collector of the Customs, at Winnington, themselves-and, if they can only accomplish this end, they are surely and verily

To make a practical application of these remarks, we think the Know-Nothings ought to be the happiest people upon earth. They set up the highest claims to talent-THE LEVIATHAN. - This ship is so lon- for their champions invariably vanquish ger to be called the Leviathan-she is to their opponents upon every field of argument. They assert a monopoly of patriot-Eastern. She has been registered in that ism and principle-and deny the possession of these to their opponents, except those of a sordid-character, such as the loaves and fishes. They claim superiority in all the political wirtues, and they are always going to beat their opponents the next time. And, although they hardly "ever are, but always to 'be blest," still if they do verily believe that victory awaits them at the next trial, that ought to be quite a source of consolation. In fact, the possession of such an unequal amount of talent, principle, patriotism and certainty of anticipated triumph, ought to be a fund of unending happiness to our Know-Nothing

Now, we have run the parallel as far as we can; for we must leave the task of carrying it a step farther and demonstrating that they really are what they ought to be, the happiest people upon earth, to be accomplished by the Know-Nothings themselves. It is true, the people do not seem to give them much "aid and comfort," nor to appreciate very keenly their high pretensions to extra merit; but if they sincerely claim its possession, surely a consciousness of superiority cught to comfort them, even if the "vulgar masses" should Morgan, in Gates, candidates for the be too stupid or too corrupt townderstand and acknowledge it. If they are honest PROMOTED. - We are pleased to learn in their claims, they ought to be contented. that our young friend Wm. V. Geffroy, of nay positively happy; and, whether they actually possess these virtues or not, is quite immaterial, if they only think they have them. If a drunken man imagines himself rich, it is just as good as if he was rich, so long as he continues drunk. The to say there is not a more faithful Clerk in fact that he may wake up the next day as 'poor as Job's turkey" and with a splitting headache, don't affect his present glowing

> Whether the Know-Nothings are hones in their vaunted superiority or not, we think we may safely venture to declare that if they are satisfied with their share of the talents, the political integrity, and influence in the affairs of the nation, the Democrats are with theirs.

HEALTH OF EX-PRESIDENT PIERCE AND LADY .- A correspondent of the Philadel. phia Press, writing from Boston, says:

"The friends of Ex. President Pierce will be glad to learn that, by a late arrival by ship from Madeira, tidings have been received from him. His own health was perfect. The health of his excellent wife had been much improved by her sojourn in the island, but the causes of her sickness were not removed. They were to leave Madeira on the 1st of June, for Lisbon thence, avoiding the larger European cities, for Veva, in Switzerland, where he will spend the summer. Mr. Nathaniel Hawhorne and Mr. John Howard March will be with him in Switzerland, I hear. The period of his stay in Europe will be controlled by the health of Mrs. Pierce."

We improved the opportunity afrelation and comparison; and as every forded us by our short stay, to ascertain something of the probable result of the coming election in old Chowan. Our information was of the most encouraging character. Dillard will lead his opponent. Skinner, for the Senate, and Badham will beat Cannon, for the Commons, from sixty to seventy-five votes. The Democracy of noble old Chowan are up and doing, and will doubtless roll up an unprecedented majority for all the candidates.

The tap of the bell of the steamer called us on board, and we were soon gliding over the star-lit Albemarle, in the trusty little Stag-whose commander, Freeman, is as gallant a fellow as ever trod a vessel's deck-en route for our destination. We landed at Franklin, on the line of the Seaboard Road, about 10 o'clock, A. M., and taking the accommodation train reached Pertsmouth at 2, P. M. Our stay was but short, yet sufficiently long to give us some idea of the rapid growth and prosperous condition of the new made city f Portsmouth, and had we the time, would notice them at length. This, however, we are not allowed to do, as we have just reached home and the hour for going to press is nearly upon us. Our absence will occount to our readers for the scarcity of editorial in this and the last issue, but we promise them more in the future. This brief notice is intended as an apology.

NAG'S HEAD.

This summer resort is now open for the season, under the exclusive management of its present worthy and energetic propri- tax men and anti-tax men-State debt etor, Mr. John Boothe.

A short sojourn at the Hotel during the last week satisfies us that it is the intention of Mr. Boothe to devote his time, his energies, and his money to promote the comfort and minister to the gratification of his guests, and to build up for Nag's Head a reputation for good living that shall not be surpassed by any other watering place in the country. Mr. Boothe has laid in his stores with an unsparing hand, and made the amplest preparations for supplying his its harsh notes and fruitless flutterings. table with fish, crabs, &c., &c. Twelve new rooms have been added to the establishment, and the buildings and furniture thoroughly renovated. The culinary department is in charge of one well qualified A. Harney, well and favorably known to the Nag's Head visitor, is principal assistsay that Mr. Harney is no small acquisition. A new well has been sunk near the Hotel, and furnishes an abundance of excellent water, an article previously much in demand, but hard to get at Nag's Head. We predictifor Mr. Boothe a profitable, and to the guest, a pleasant season at Wag's Head.

MR. McRAE.

All accounts of the discussions between Messrs. Ellis and McRae in the West agree sive empire and self-government: in representing the latter gentleman as having changed his opinion upon the subject of internal improvements. Just as was expected. Mr. McRae bid high for without a navy, and this develops the eastern votes by declaring his antagonism to any farther appropriations. Taxes were already too burdensome to be borne. and to increase them by giving farther aid to rail roads, though hastening to completion, would be an act which no sane man could be guilty of. This was rather more than the East was willing to claim. Mr. McRae desired in the goodness of his heart to do more for her than she wished to be done; kind soul that he was, it grieved him some to contemplate the possibility of an increased burden being placed upon eastern shoulders, and he would step in in the hour of danger as their protector. Not a dollar more says he to the East for internal improvements.

It is true, millions have been expended apon works not yet completed: "let them slide," sink the amount, but not another dollar to carry them on. The East said nay to this proposition. Eastern men un-derstood this as a vote trap, and spurned it. They knew too well that to allow those splendid schemes now in the course of construction to go to ruin and decay for the want of the State aid requisite to complete them, would entsil a heavier burden than double the sum required. When finished. they may be expected to furnish a revenue, and to return to the State a portion of the money taken to build them; withhold the necessary assistance, and there is none so ignorant as not to see the result. Mr. McRae overshot the mark.

Now he is in the West. A change has come over the spirit of his dream; he is willing to extend a helping hand since the mountain breezes have blown upon him. It is not so dreadful a thing after all to increase the taxes of the East, and Mr. McRae has found it out since inhaling the internal improvement atmosphere of the West. He is now a marvelously proper internal improvement man, and will no doubt be more so if he can tickle the West into a belief of his sincerity. It is uscless; the mark of condemnation was never more visibly stamped upon the brow of Cain than it is upon the course of the distribution candidate, and he knows it. August will bury him so deep that twenty resurrections could not bring him forth.

Bear in mind that every person who is entitled to vote for members of the House of Commons, will also be entitled to Senate. And bear in mind, also that this ants.' great right was secured to the people by

Nonsense. - It is amusing to read the stuff put out by the opposition press about Messrs. Kerr, Osborne & Co., nominating Judge Ellis and throwing Mr. Holden overboard. Mr. Kerr is particularly talked about, and yet he voted for the nomination of Mr. Holden. Wilmington Journal. True enough: Before the Charlotte Convention was held "Holden" formed the chief staple of Mr. McRae's denunciations, but after the Convention, "Holden" became all at once a very "proper man."-Many tears were shed over the result at Charlotte by sundry persons of the opposition; and the Convention has been compared to an assemblage of birds of the most opposite natures, by whom "Holden" was ustled out of the nest and forced into the bleak, unwholesome air. Nevertheless "Holden" is just what he was, both in heart and in action; and the answer he makes to Mr. McRae, to the sympathizing s the earnest support which he is extending, and extending with pleasure, to John W. Ellis. We are not surprised at such tactics on the part of the opposition. If "Holden" or any one else had been nominated, we should have heard the same expression of sympathy for Judge Ellis. But never since the State has

The annexation of Cuba, sooner or later, is likely to become one of the absorbing

quiring Cuba, he said: We should then have only to include the North in our confederacy, which would be of course in the first war, and we would have such an empire for liberty as she never surveyed since the creation; and I am persuaded that no constitution was ever before so well calculated as ours for exten-

It will be objected to our receiving Cuba, that no limit can be drawn to our future acquisitions. Cuba can be defended by us principle which ought to limit our views. Nothing should ever be acquired which would require a navy to defend it.

On another occasion the same distinguished statesman held this language: Our first and fundamental maxim shoul be, never to entangle ourselves in the broils of Europe. Our second, never to suffer Europe to intermeddle with cis-Atlantic

I candidly confess that I have ever looked on Cuba as the most interesting addition which could be made to our system of States. To control which, with Florida point, this island would give us on the Gulf of Mexico, and the countries and isthmus bordering on it, would fill the measure of our political well-being.

But, it may be asked, what effect would the annexation have upon the North and South, as free and slave States? Cuba would, of course, have to be admitted as a slave State, and this would naturally produce opposition in the North. A compromise, however, could readily be effected The North, moreover, would be disposed to look kindly upon the enterprise, if thereby the iniquitous slave trade could be

CIRCUS OUTRAGE .- Another of those outrageous affrays to which the Circus so often gives rise, (witness particularly Chatham and Sampson,) occurred at Wilkesborough on the 6th inst. A writer in the Iredell Express says that "some difficulty having occurred between a citizen of the county and the showmen, the lawless band of actors, arming themselves with axes and elubs, commenced a promiscuous slaughter, causing the whole crowd of one thousand or more to make a simultaneous rush for fire-arms into the village, with full intent if possible to shoot down the whole band of wretches, on the spot. But happily for the sake of good order, it was prevented, by the arrest and conviction of six of the villains, confining them in jail, the others leaving dimes as security their appearance. It is much regretted that several of the most guilty made their escape, owing to the great confusion at the commencement. Four of our county men were badly mangled, but it is hoped they will recover. The writer gives this publicity, that the citizens of adjoining counties may be prepared in a proper way, to vote at the next August election, and at protect themselves from unguarded outall sebsequent elections for members of the rages at the hands of unprincipled miscre-

From the Rome (N. Y.) Sentinel. DESCRIPTION OF GREAT SALT LAKE .- AS the great Salt Lake of the Mormons has of late years, become a place of interest to the people of this country, I send you an extract of a letter from a resident of that place, giving some description of it: "The lake is on the west side of the valley, 80 miles long, 40 miles wide, without sink or outlet. The deepest water is 41 feet, interspersed with islands, mostly at the north end, two at the south end, one twenty miles long, the other 15; on the east island brother Parr keeps a herd of some fine cattle, a fine ranche, plenty of water, plenty of wood. The west island (Stanbury's) has very little wood and fresh water, but fine grass; cattle summer and winter on these islands, making the fattest beef I ever saw. I have boiled salt at the south end of the lake, called Black Rock, for five years. There is on a mountain some 40 miles north, bordering on the opposition, and especially to the Register, lake, any amount of copperas and alum: Three years ago ('51) three pails of water made one of salt. The lake has risen seven feet in five years. It now takes nearly five pails of water to make one of beach now. Four years ago I loaded a wagon in two hours, as handsome coarse salt as you ever saw, and as good quality. The water is impregnated with glauber salts, lime, copperas, alum, muriatic acid, &c., &c. The salt springs issue from the foot of the mountains. There is not a pure fresh water spring on the whole of the south end. The spring which we use from is too much flavored to suit strangers. It is a wild romantic place but I love it, it is my home—we were driven from our homes by a band of ruffians, that would give us no rest day or night. Here we can sleep sweetly amid the dashing of waves, the howl of the wolf, and the grisly bear, and the vell of the savage.\"

THE EFFECTS OF JEALOUSY .- On the 5th of July a pic-nic party, consisting of two young men and two ladies, proceeded over to the Anne Arundel shore for the purpose of passing the day in rural sports and pastimes. After re-embarking for home the demon of jealousy took possession of the breast of one of the young men, who fancied that his belle inclined a too willing ear to the affectionate endearments of the other. A violent altercation ensued at once, fellowed by a collision between the two beaux, in the midst of which they were both precipitated into the water. Fortunately one of the young ladies had the presence of mind to extend an oar to one of the men, who managed to scramble on board and afterwards extricate his companion. The remainder of the trip passed away very peaceably, neither party being willing to resume the contest.

'How old are you, and what's your name?' continued he, without waiting for a reply; 'I am sure you are one of the finest little fellows that I ever saw-will you just turn a few minutes for me? Alas! thought I, it is hard enough to turn a grindstone this cold day, but to be called a little rascal was too much. It sunk deep in my mind, and often have I thought of it since. When I see a merchant over polite to his customers, begging them to take a little brandy, and throwing his goods on the counter, thinks I that man has an axe to grind. When I see a man flattering the people, making great professions of attachment to liberty. who is in private life a tyrant, methinks look out, good people, that fellow would set you turning a grindstone. When I see a man hoisted into office by a party spirit, without a single qualification to render him respectable or useful, alas! methinks, deluded people, you are doomed for a season to turn the grindstone for a booby.

Most of the Pills in market contain Mercury, which, al-though a valuable remedy in skilful hands, is dangerous in a public pill, from the dreadful consequences that fre-quently follow its incautions use. These contain no mer-eury or mineral substance whatever.

We need not speak to the public of its virtues. Throughout every town, and almost every hamlet of the American States, its wonderful cures of pulmonary complaints have made it already known. Nay, few are the families in any civilized country on this continent with-
